Napster

Bringing the Songs You Love to Your Life Napster is a world-renowned music discovery and streaming service that has been a trailblazer in the digital music industry. Since 1999, Napster has been a pioneer of the online music community, giving users control over and ownership of their music and directly connecting listeners to one another, creating new fan bases and collaborations. After years of hard work, our users are finally ready for the next step. By combining the streaming and music discovery features of Napster with the advantages of a modern streaming service, we are happy to announce the relaunch of Napster as an all-in-one music streaming service that combines all of our best features into one. For our users, the "About" page will reflect the features that are most important to them. For example, Napster will be home to your music library, with a large, customizable catalog that can be browsed and played from multiple devices and platforms. Listeners will also be able to play, stream, or share their playlists with friends and followers, and enjoy exclusive offline listening capabilities, all without ads or limitations. And music listeners will have access to a great assortment of curated playlists, such as Discover Weekly and Weekly Top 20, plus custom radio stations based on your listening habits, including chart-toppers and new releases that other users like you may not have yet heard. Finally, Napster will also continue to offer the highly rated Napster UnRadio, a customizable radio station with one-of-a-kind playlists built around your own tastes, and a 24/7 companion mobile app, all available for a monthly subscription fee. Today, Napster is a leader in the streaming industry, but there's more we want to do. Napster has always been about providing the tools and the people to enable people to create their own music and share their passion with the world. We're proud of our spot in the industry, and this relaunch is our chance to do something bold and creative, redefining the music streaming experience with music discovery, community, and ownership. Features: • A world-renowned music catalog spanning six decades and more than 24 million songs • A large, customizable music library with a user-friendly interface • Listen to your own and your favorite playlists and discover new music • Create your own custom radio stations based on your listening habits and search for new and trending music based on music you've discovered on Napster

While it ascended pretty quickly as one of the favorite ways to get music at the beginning of the 2000s, the service was quickly banned due to several lawsuits regarding copyright infringement. Napster is an app created after the rebirth of the service, designed mainly, but not exclusively, for the company's clients. Nowadays, Napster is a subscription-based digital music service that aims to allow you to listen to music wherever you are. The program comes with a clean interface split between the song list and the audio player. Napster can work both online and offline. While the program doesn't require a Napster account to work, some features are reserved for the service's clients. Thus, access to the Internet radio stations and to the CD burning feature is blocked to regular users. The software can play various audio files, whether bought with Napster or already on your computer. The tracks on your account can be played online or downloaded to a directory of your choice. Other tracks you may have on your PC can be played by dragging and dropping them to the program's interface. The entire music collection can be viewed by genre or artist. Music playlists are also supported by the app in order to make the process more enjoyable. The software allows you to define a download directory and organize your files in subfolders by artist and album name. Account issues can also be addressed
