Photoshop Elements 8 And Up Photoshop Elements 8, available from Adobe, is a free version of the main Photoshop editing program and similar to Photoshop. The Photoshop Elements program differs from Photoshop by allowing you to edit only one image at a time, rather than all of them at the same time. It's a little more limited, yet has an excellent array of tools for small, home business owners and people who need to edit pictures they upload to personal online photo albums. Adobe offers a number of great online tutorials in preparation for learning Photoshop Elements. The latest versions of both are in their seventh generation. Version 8 debuted in 2009 and version 9 was released in 2011. Workflow Photoshop's workflow has matured into a fairly straightforward series of steps. The steps are slightly different from the traditional "Photoshop Darkroom" workflow, because most graphic designers need to create and edit multiple files simultaneously. Photoshop's layers enable you to easily and quickly make changes or add new elements to the image. A Photoshop photograph looks like this. It's layered into three distinct sections: the background the original image the foreground elements in the image A Photoshop photograph typically has six or more layers. While the traditional darkroom workflow typically works with three layers for a complete edit, Photoshop users will typically stack additional layers to create unique effects, blends or to even duplicate layers. In short, by creating layers and applying and removing the individual layers from the original image, a Photoshop user can create an unlimited number of finished works of art. Steps are key for a successful Photoshop editing and work flow includes: Backup Work The first step of Photoshop editing is usually creating a backup copy of the image before you work on it. The backup copy, or a "before" copy, will save you from the trouble of having to redo your work later should a system crash occur. Whenever you open a new image, you need to make a copy of it first. Doing so doesn't always need to be as formal as creating a backup copy; however, it's good to create a separate image that you can use as a guide. It's also essential to back up your work. This also applies to creating quick work-around edits in place of more complex tasks. Printing Use a print quality setting of about 300 or less When it comes to printing out the final

Tax hike for airlines is a tax hike for everybody We are only getting one out of six congressional hearings on taxes, but their outcome is far from significant. The two major hearings, one before the Senate Committee on Finance, the other before the House Ways and Means Committee, were called to discuss the tax provisions included in last year's tax extenders bill. This bill — particularly the part of it known as the Airport Improvement Act of 2011 — will cost an extra $4 billion in taxes this year alone. It's also a tax increase for the rest of us, because businesses and individuals are having to deal with the burden of the new aviation excise tax. According to the Office of Management and Budget, the bill is costing the economy $4.2 billion just to operate. This does not include the $4 billion in new taxes, which will have to be paid in the next quarter. Businesses and individuals aren't going to be happy with that, and should certainly have their voices heard. But until then, the focus will be on the debates in Washington. Tax breaks are everywhere There are more than 2,000 separate tax provisions in the extenders bill. As usual, the great majority involve breaks for specific types of businesses. There are also numerous tax breaks available for individuals. Nearly one-third of all tax breaks are for individuals, compared to 11 percent for businesses. The top seven categories are as follows: * Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs): $1.7 billion in new tax breaks for IRA owners * Adoption Credit: $615 million * Education Credit for Dependent Care: $489 million * Home Mortgage Credit: $387 million * Education Savings Credit: $347 million * Mortgage Credit: $150 million * Child Care Credit: $97 million Note that the totals can only be a hint at the amount spent, given that there are more than 1,400 break categories. For example, Education Savings Credits are broken down into 47 different categories. This equates to a tax break for an individual of about $100,000 for the credit — and the credit is paid back by the Internal Revenue Service. This is one of the main problems with the tax code, which is one of the reasons why some reformers call for a total moratorium on new tax breaks. Let'

Q: Get data from both tables using alias I'm creating a PHP and MySQL webapp and I am having trouble with the following situation. I have two tables, contacts and user. The user table is a table within the contacts table where every user can belong to multiple contacts. The contacts table is full of fields such as contactnumber, name, emailaddress and so on. So, the problem I am having is this: I use a while loop to get all the unique contact numbers from the contacts table and each unique number gets inserted into a form which I am running through a search_form function. The code looks like this: $search_sql = sprintf("SELECT `the_contact_number` FROM `the_user` WHERE `the_contact_number` LIKE '%s'", $name); while ($contact_result = $db->mysql_query($search_sql)) { $contact = get_contact($contact_result); $contact_number = $contact['the_contact_number']; $search_sql = sprintf("SELECT `the_contact_number` FROM `the_user` WHERE `the_contact_number` LIKE '%s'", $contact_number); $result = $db->mysql_query($search_sql); while ($contacts_result = $db->mysql_fetch_assoc($result)) { $contact_id = $contacts_result['the_contact_number']; $results[] = array('the_name' => $name, 'the_id' => $contacts_result['the_id'], 'the_contact_number' => $contact_number, 'the_email' => $email, 'the_email_confirmed' => $email_confirmed); } if (!$contact_number) { $contact['the_contact_number'] = $contact_number = $name; $search_sql = sprintf("SELECT `the_contact_number` FROM `the_user` WHERE `the_contact_number` LIKE '%s'", $name);
