Q: how to make an invisible div become visible I have made an invisible div that will be hidden using JQuery's toggle. Here is what I have done so far: HTML: CSS: `#logo-wrapper { display:none; }` JQUERY: `$("#logo-wrapper").toggle(function(){ $(this).css( "display", "inline" ); }, function(){ $(this).css( "display", "none" ); });` The problem is that I don't want the div to be visible until the toggle has finished. A: Try this: `$("#logo-wrapper").toggle(function(){ $(this).animate({"display":"inline"}); }, function(){ $(this).animate({"display":"none"}); });` During the last years, the value of environmental considerations has increased steadily within the portfolio of the use of new technologies. Therefore, the following questions arose: How can we live in the future? And what can one do to implement these changes and processes into a daily life? The strategies demonstrated in the movie show how a complete change in our production process is being achieved within the next years. The position of the movie in the exhibition is a result from this request. 4.1.1 Light Industry in the future. 4.2.1 Integrated approach The strategy showed in this movie reveals, that our most significant infrastructure (energy, raw materials, water, waste) is controlled by and integrated with the four factors (energy, raw materials, water, waste) which are the general fundament of our production. By changing one process, the other three are adaptable. The whole concept is based on the work of the German Council for Sustainable Development (WCSD) and its "Sustainable Product Innovation" concept: In the context of sustainable product development, the process steps of industrial manufacturing are integrated with the four factors of sustainability and their relationship with technology is realized. The integrated technology–environment concept includes the whole process chain from raw material to waste and covers all steps of a product's life cycle. 4.3
