Q: How to apply rotation to an image? Actually, I use JavaFX and I want to rotate an Image object when there is a mouse click. I tried to create a code like this but it doesn't work because the method rotate is not supported by images. (Rotate method is supported only by vector/scalar type. image.setOnMouseClicked(new EventHandler() { @Override public void handle(MouseEvent mouseEvent) { double angle = 0.0; angle = MouseInfo.getPointerInfo().getPointerAngle() * 3.14159 / 360; image.rotate(angle, image.getRotate()); } })); A: You can convert an Image to a BufferedImage, apply the rotation, then convert back to Image. Michael Carrick: Ronaldo would have been happy if Chelsea had won the Champions League, says defender 0:27 Michael Carrick says the achievements of Cristiano Ronaldo and Lionel Messi mean it's likely Chelsea will miss out in the Champions League final again Michael Carrick says the achievements of Cristiano Ronaldo and Lionel Messi mean it's likely Chelsea will miss out in the Champions League final again Michael Carrick has given his backing to Chelsea's Antonio Conte for staying loyal to his players despite the ongoing turmoil on the pitch. Midfielder Cesar Azpilicueta has been criticised by some for following the example set by Spain defender Gerard Pique in refusing to travel to Russia to take on European champions Real Madrid. And Carrick says Conte is not letting the situation impact on his attitude. "The one thing I admire about Antonio is he kept the faith with the players who went in and did the job for him," Carrick told Sky Sports. "It's a difficult time in the world at the moment and it's probably every man for himself and I think Antonio has kept the trust in some of the players who have let him down, which is a credit to him. "[The players who refused to go] did exactly what he asked them to do. That's the one thing you have to respect." Carrick was part of the Chelsea team that beat Juventus in the Champions League final in 2012, with the Blues eventually missing out on the trophy after finishing third in Serie A. And although Conte's side have struggled since winning the Premier League in May, the ex-England international says he thinks that will be a significant factor in Sunday's showpiece. "It's a prestigious competition. It's the most prestigious competition in the world," he added. "It's not like we're just up against Juventus in the Champions League. It's a massive tie. We've got to make sure we maximise our chances."Salome Kilokani Salome Kilokani (born 3 January 1970) is a Congolese athlete. She competed in the women's high jump at the 1996 Summer Olympics.
