“Calm down, calm down, a little water, please,” Scott Prendergast, a police officer who drove the ambulance, told the driver as he began guiding him to the back of the vehicle, where he held a water bottle. The officer put the driver in the rear of the ambulance, and the driver began sobbing. Moments later, the driver, Daniel Sheehan, 27, rose from the gurney and held his head. “He didn’t make sense,” Mr. Prendergast said. “He didn’t seem like himself.” When paramedics arrived, they revived Mr. Sheehan, who still seemed confused, and took him to St. Francis Hospital, where he was treated, said Lieutenant James Driscoll, a police spokesman. Mr. Sheehan left the hospital a short time later, but was re-arrested in West Hartford after his arrest on July 8 in Hartford. An officer had responded to a call and found Mr. Sheehan in a public parking lot, Mr. Driscoll said. In February, Mr. Sheehan pleaded not guilty to charges of fourth-degree sexual assault and risk of injury to a minor. Mr. Sheehan’s parents, who live in Connecticut, refused to talk to the police after the incident. His mother, Nancy, 48, declined to comment. His father, Dennis, 52, told The Hartford Courant that his son was “doing a little better” and that he “starts each day with some exercises, walks and goes to the facility for treatment.”
