Dacorum Borough Council Dacorum Borough Council is the local authority for the Borough of Dacorum in Hertfordshire, England. Formed in 1974, it is a unitary authority, with the powers to create byelaws, make a strategic plan ("long term plan"), and set a precept. This is decided annually by the council and is used to raise funds to be spent on the areas. The council is based in Hertford. The borough has an urban park, Dacorum Town Park and sports centre, Dacorum Sports Centre. The Labour Party has held the majority of seats in the borough since the creation of Dacorum Council. Friday, December 09, 2006 The Class of 2007: More Good Looks I have been wanting to do this for a while, but I had no idea how much color and gold to use. After some scrambling, I think we got a beautiful effect. We are supposed to be in nice light blue-grey, for those of you who don't know how to visit teachers' blogs - but you don't need to - we are supposed to do a piece of clay that is light blue-grey. The clay is composed of about 25% clay, 25% metals, 25% polymers, and 25% resins. We actually got a somewhat good effect - the one thing I'm going to do differently next time is use a lot more resin, because it dries so quickly. The resin is hard to control when you go on the second day, but we have a first day clay... so next time, use more resin. (note: lesson plans start tomorrow - details to be provided later) 1 comment: Anonymous said... i can't help but notice that your
