The somatic embryo formation is a complex phenomenon that includes a series of genetic and morphological changes. An efficient regeneration system will aid in producing genetically stable polyploid plants with desirable characters. A culture medium was developed to induce embryogenic callus, and 4-n-nonylphenol (NP) was added to induce somatic embryogenesis. Somatic embryos were able to grow in liquid medium with NP after the first 2 weeks of culture. The somatic embryos were transferred to a medium containing 2 mg/L benzyladenine (BA), which promoted somatic embryo maturation. The somatic embryos were used to produce a plantlet. The physiological and morphological characteristics were examined during embryogenesis and plant development. The plantlet was transferred to soil for a 2-year growth trial. also argue that the district court erroneously interpreted the Kentucky statutes in finding that the labeling was insufficient. Organek, Inc.*, 865 F.2d 204, 207 (7th Cir.1989). "The Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, [21 U.S.C. § 301 et seq.] creates a cause of action with respect to labels on food and packaging, when a person sells a mislabeled food product that is harmful." Diamond Jim's, 865 F.2
